I am Parsa Siddighi, a 20-year-old full-stack developer based in the Netherlands. My focus is on creating creative, clean, and user-friendly web solutions. With over three years of learning experience in both front-end and back-end development combined with various design tools, I also gained six months of work experience during an internship at a web development company. There, I mainly contributed to WordPress-based websites for businesses and startups. I am currently looking forward to graduating next year during my graduation internship.
